

Umbilia Hesitata an amazing mantle line not seen in hessies, good size 90mm

trawled in a remote part of bass strait that hardly gets netted these days,very far east of mallacoota and gabo island in 2018. victoria,this is an extraordinary hesitata with a mantle line that is hardly ever offered on this species but comes with its issues has some sand inclusions on top of dorsum but not over intrusive a stress fracture on the base as well,no chips,never the less a fine looking shell that is extremely unusual and rare
