

Nannamoria stolidus (Johnston, 1880) 41 mm, Tasmania, Australia. Age: Middle Miocene (approximately 14.5 million years). This piece is relatively intact, and the growth scar was acquired in life. A solid shell with prominent sculpture and in overall very good condition despite its considerable age

47 $, Jan 2019

